DR. GIBBONS'

DISPENSARY,

623 Kearny St.,

Corner Commercial Street,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture Syphilis in all its forms Seminal Weakness, Impotency etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Rheumatism successfully treated

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary 623 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who [illegible] cure the most inveterate case, without [illegible] any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz. Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption night sweats monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

Married Men.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Cured at Home.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co, a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Germans don't Take any Banquet.

NEW YORK, Aug 1—A Herald's special of last night says it is a significant fact that no German burgomaster answered the London lord mayor's invitation to the municipal banquet. This, it is believed, was by order of Bismarck Invitations were accepted by other continental mayors The greatest attention was paid the Prefect of the Seine, who now holds receptions in London like the mayor himself the band of Grande Republic playing the French national airs in Alexandra Palace and being cheered enthusiastically by the English people

The O'Connell Centenary.

Disraeli and Gladstone are rather reticent. It is believed Disraeli would cheerfully join in a proper tribute to O'Connell as a liberator and Gladstone would act upon invitation and deliver a eulogy, but he having sided with Dollinger must consistently condemn the ultramontane coloring given to the approaching demonstration, besides he believes Cardinal Cullen and Manning and other astute Catholics, have contrived the demonstration purposely to make trouble with Germany while consolidating the Catholic feeling

Lord Derby believes the feeling on the continent favor holding governments responsible for all offenses occurring in their jurisdiction If German bishops introduced their internal politics in Irish speeches it would cause bad feeling between German and English papers, and possibly result in difficulty with Bismarck

The Marquis of Hartington takes a liberal position and believes that not in Ireland herself is the Liberator's memory more respected than among English whig families because he was a friend of civil and religious liberty everywhere The cry of whigs and liberals has always been that the Liberator assisted the English liberals.

Earl Russel says he has great respect for the memory of O'Connell as he knew him well and gave several of his sons appointment but he cannot sanction ultramontanism

The mass of the Irish people applaud the lord mayor's action and the English press almost unanimously deplore the Dublin lord mayor's making a religious instead of a national affair of the celebration

The Examiner says whoever is a friend of the Pope and an enemy of Germany is welcomed by Ireland mayor The original legitimate purpose of the centennial has been lost. He believes in the nearly accomplished alliance of Irish Catholics and English Protestants It is now impossible

The Telegraph says no loyal Irish Catholic can take part where the sovereign is denied the first place

Appropriation for the Centennial.

VERSAILLES, Aug 2—The national assembly voted 20,000 francs for the French exhibition at the centennial.

Government Telegraph System a Costly Experiment.

LONDON Aug 2—The Times says the government system for sending shilling dispatches over the telegraph of the country has disappointed expectations The time is coming when this rate will cease to pay and unless a great change is made the service will become a heavy and increasing permanent charge on the country's finances

The London Times on Andrew Johnson.

The Times, in an article on Andrew Johnson says his career illustrates both the strong and weak points of the American social and political systems During his term of office he showed himself wanting in tact, refinement and knowledge of men yet he had some qualities which are not so abundant in American politics as to be despised when found He had dauntless courage some political insight, and honesty never shadowed by suspicion

Arraigned for Assaulting a Young Lady.

CROYDON, August 2—Colonel Francis Baker of the 10th Hussars, was arraigned to day to answer to an indictment in which he is charged with misdemeanor for assault upon a young lady in a railway carriage. The colonel is a brother of Sir Samuel Baker the traveler and was a companion of the Prince of Wales The assault was committed in a first-class compartment of a railway carriage but the lady prevented its assuming a more serious form by bursting open the door of the carriage and standing on the narrow footboard until the train—an express—reached the nearest station when she was rescued.

Sale of a Throne.

LONDON Aug 2—The Duke of Edinburgh heir apparent to the throne of Saxe Coburg Gotha in Central Germany has sold the right of succession to the throne of that duchy to the German government, in consideration of an annuity of £80 000 sterling

AN IMPORTANT LIBEL SUIT.

BALTIMORE, Md July 19 1875

The three suits instituted in the court of common pleas on Friday last by the governor of Maryland by the state comptroller and state treasurer respectively composing the board of public works against the Baltimore American for libel, the damages claimed being $25,000 in each case are likely to become celebrated ruling cases To day Reverdy Johnson tendered his professional services to the proprietors of the American which having been accepted Mr Johnson's appearance was entered in each case as their attorney In his letter volunteering his services Mr Johnson says — My motive for making this offer was that from the ground on which I understand the suits have been brought I thought the public interest was concerned and that the freedom and usefulness of the public press were involved. This being my impression I cannot agree to receive any pecuniary compensation Owing to the high and equally high social character and reputation of the plaintiffs there can be no likelihood of compromise or settlement short of a decision of a legal tribunal The official conduct of these gentlemen being involved on the one part in these cases, and the extent of the right and liberty of the press to criticise and charge corruption to public officers on the other the suits have already attracted attention throughout the State Both parties are represented by the ablest counsel in Maryland

The Evidence Closed.

The prosecution offered nothing in rebuttal Counsel on each side presented requests for instructions to the jury The witnesses were all discharged Those in the case of Bishop Dame are ordered to return next Monday Court ordered jury removed from the court room while the discussion on instructions proceeded Argument then took place on asked for instructions Recess

George A Smith's

Deposition sets out his sickness and inability to attend the trial. He had no military command in 1857, and no position but that of one of the 12 apostles He never attended a council concerning the destruction of the emigrants never knew or heard of the emigrants till he met them at Corn creek about August 25th, 1857 as he was going back north in his preaching in South Utah He counseled saving grain Crops had been short for several years and many people were in actual want He advised the people to supply the emigrants with food for themselves but not to sell or give them grain for stock He never heard of the massacre until after his return to Salt Lake heard of it first at Fort Bridger denies that he was accessory to the massacre or directly or indirectly aided or abetted it knows nothing of the destruction of the emigrants' property

Brigham Young

Swears he is 75 years old and he could not, without great risk, now endure the fatigue of a journey to Beaver was governor in 1857, and president of the church In June 1857 the U S government stopped the mails for Utah, and sent an army ostensibly to destroy the Latter-Day Saints no U S judge was here In the latter part of 1857 heard a rumor that Arkansas emigrants had passed through Salt Lake, never heard of their being ordered away advice was given citizens not to sell grain to the emigrants for stock, but to supply food for the emigrants crops had been short for several years and a prospect of trouble with the United States army, then at hand, was imminent citizens were counseled not to feed grain to their stock no person was ever punished for supplying food to emigrants so far as he knows never heard of the attack on the emigrants till after it and then only by a floating rumor two or three months after it, John D Lee told him the Indians were hostile and stirred up at the settlers and threatening the whites, he gave witness an account of the massacre told him to stop, as I did not wish my feelings harrowed up with a recital of the details Klingen Smith didn't call on me with John D Lee have no memory of his ever speaking to me about the massacre or the emigrants' property never gave orders about that property or ever heard of its disposal, except from rumors, did not examine into the matter because another governor had been appointed and was en route to the Territory, and because no United States judges were here, soon after Gov Cumming arrived, he offered to go with him and Judge Cradlebaugh of the southern district, to investigate the matter and bring the offenders to justice, and to take sufficient aid along to do it. About Sept 10 1857, I received a letter from either Haight or Lee concerning the Arkansas emigrants but can't find it now; I answered it and addressed it to Haight, then president at Cedar City, the substance of my letter was to let these emigrants pass through, and all other emigrants to let them go through unmolested, and to try to allay the angry feelings of the Indians

The deposition of Young is considered here as very damaging to his own case showing that he had power to see the emigrants go through unmolested, he received Haight's letter about Sept 10th and the massacre occurred Sept 14th Mountain Meadows are distant from Salt Lake 313 miles

WM THIEL Secretary

After a long silence Gen Lane has again had his say in politics This time he talks on the currency issue In a letter to the Arcadian—and is this Arcadia politics?—he reiterates his well known greenback money theories He is an inflationist and an enemy of specie payments, and doesn't hesitate to say so. He predicates the relations of parties to the subject, for he says the financial question must apparently be solved by the Democratic party —as it certainly must if solved in his way

Colorado Springs papers chronicle the number of invalids who arrive there daily One day last week there were eleven arrivals—four consumptives and seven asthmatics

TRIP OVER MINTO PASS ROUTE

SATURDAY, July 10 1875

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

At 8 o'clock this morning we left Mr Hennessee's crossed our camp equipments in a skiff and forded the river with the pack animals a short distance below where the water was about two and a half feet deep After packing we started along the northern bank in an easterly direction up the main north fork of the Santiam river all in good spirits and on a plain trail through very heavy timber At 12 o'clock we stopped at a place called the Narrows or Stony Point, where we lunched all being very tired as none except Captain Cooper were accustomed to such traveling and the weather being very warm which was considerably augmented on account of one of our pack animals which we had to repack and initiate into the scientific mysteries of how to carry loads over narrow and crooked trails In the afternoon Prof Powell caught some very fine trout which were relished with satisfaction after our unusual exercise Our forces becoming disgusted with the trip started back but were overhauled by Messrs Sherman and Reddington after they had nearly reached the river crossing Towards evening the mosquitoes and gnats put in an appearance and demanded toll for invading their precincts They were very numerous and annoying

The estimated cost of constructing a bridge across the river at Hennessee's is $2 500 and the road to this camp being three miles for $500

SUNDAY July 11th

Left camp at 6 o'clock our course being still up the river and in an easterly direction which we held for the day Timber, very heavy and in a short time, we entered a large burn and the trail became terribly obstructed by fallen timber The signs of one or more persons who had passed over the trail only a few days before were verified by finding their camp and a cast off horse shoe The next place of note on our trail is a place called Bad Banks, where the trail had been cut along the precipitous banks of a small stream, and the river at the junction of the two streams the trail had been cut along this place where a horse would have fallen 40 feet and into the river, as one of the party said "kerslop" At the summit of these banks we found that a tremendous fire had burned over the country last fall and the trail was entirely destroyed necessitating to cut away logs and brush and dig around roots of trees causing as much labor for at least two miles as if there had never been a trail or survey through that place

The mountains at times receded for a distance of a quarter of a mile then drawing up to the river, making small flats with soil generally good, with patches of basalt rock protruding to the surface. On the opposite side of the river fires had made extensive clearings, well adapted to grazing

At Bad Banks we found that the party who had preceded us had turned back or gone in some other direction At 12 o'clock we reached the river at Rocky Point, all very tired, and concluded to camp Distance five miles estimated cost of constructing a road $3,000

MONDAY, July 12th

Left at 5½ o'clock, continuing in an easterly direction, and for about three miles except the first one-fourth of a mile, through a wooded bottom, of which the most had been burned over intersected by small streams and the trail obstructed by fallen trees, causing considerable work in making our way around them The next place of interest known is Marion Lynn (Lynn being Scotch for falls) where the river is confined to the narrow limits of 15 yards The best description that I can give is that there is a ledge of basalt rock, in places 50 feet high, standing in the center of the river bed, and when the river is full of water, forms a picturesque island around which the foaming water dashes with great violence, and drift wood is crushed by the force of the resisting rock At the time that our party were there the water was confined to the main channel spoken of and on the south side of the island At the head of this small canyon the water falls five feet almost perpendicular and by the time it reaches the lower end of the island the descent is at least five or six more A long log is laying across this chasm over which a person could pass but a misstep would be certain death as the seething, dashing, rushing and boiling water would be beyond the power of any human being to buffet At a distance of half a mile above we commenced to ascend the side of the mountain passing Weeping Rock over which a small stream makes a rash leap of 60 feet the water being reduced to spray This is a very pretty fall but cannot be seen very well from the trail In a short time we again returned to the river where the water at each bank is almost milk white while the center of the stream is a dark blue and runs with a slow and deep current Up the river about 400 yards we came to Hanging Rock through which the wagon road would have to be blasted but can be very easily done At this point we commenced to climb the side of the mountain in earnest which is terribly steep and at one point almost impossible for our animals to climb this ascent is for a quarter of a mile and we were 500 feet above the river and road survey all caused by the negligence of having the trail cut along the survey thus obviating great toil and wear of patience On our descent which was steep, we came to Canyon creek a beautiful and rapid stream, 10 or 12 feet wide, but not over 12 inches deep that mingles its waters with the river a short distance below A steep ascent was again encountered and in a short time we were 300 or 400 feet above the river The trail is simply execrable, and two of our animals fell while crossing over some slick rock one of which received a severe wound We now passed through some of the finest timber that Oregon can boast of, consisting of cedar larch, hemlock and yellow fir On the descent of the hill we came upon quite a little bottom or flat called Rocky Bar but destitute of grass for our animals and went into camp at 1 30 o'clock After we had unpacked Mr John Smith made to him the important discovery that he had left his powder flask about four miles behind, and as he had brought a $125 shot gun all the way from Indiana for the express purpose of doing havoc among deer, elk and bear in Oregon he was compelled to have that powder consequently we sympathized while he took the back track over the mountains after his missing ammunition At six o'clock he came into camp with the coveted article and enjoyed a hearty supper Above camp a short distance, the river goes through a narrow channel but having no very perceptible fall the water runs slowly although confined and is of great depth as it has the deep blue color. Distance traveled to day six miles and estimated cost of construction $4 000

TUESDAY July 13

Last night we were nearly eaten up by the gnats In fact they were so numerous and persistent in their attacks that some of the company lost their patience and indulged in profanity and we excused them under the circumstances At 4 o'clock we were up and in an hour more on our journey Our course was still to the east and in a few hundred yards commenced to climb the highest mountain that we had yet found At one particular place it was so steep that our pack horses were unable to climb the trail We were compelled to unpack them and carried their loads up the hill on our backs which was not calculated to improve our religious proclivities The trail cutters had been too indolent to cut two or three logs along the river bank which would have obviated all of this toilsome and unnecessary work and left an almost level trail Coming down the hill we crossed a small creek with a very bad crossing and from here we again took to the mountains But the course was the same and returned to the river in about half a mile at an old log cabin built several years ago by J C Geer and Al Coolidge for the purpose of working what was supposed to be quartz mines They had sunk a shaft about 18 feet deep The rock that they had thrown out contained sulphurets and crystalized quartz, but I did not see any that gave indications of gold and very little silver At this place we found an old blacksmith's bellows forge anvil and well worn sledges and the forge and bellows covered up with a growth of brush The cabin had been almost utterly destroyed by a tree that had fallen across it This is another mournful relic of wrecked dreams of golden treasure that has allured so many to the mountains We climbed along another mountain but soon came down into a level plateau of land and then made a very steep descent to the river up which we went along the water's edge for 300 yards over the rockiest and most dangerous piece of road that I have ever traveled In this short distance there are two places where the water from high cliffs has thrown down a great quantity of stone and debris consisting mostly of gravel and white clay of great tenacity Upon leaving the river we went up a steep ascent upon the bench again We had to unpack one of our horses as a large smooth rock lay in the trail on which he could not stand with his pack and found that we had arrived at the lower end of Big Bottom The mountains suddenly receded for some distance and are quite level covered with the best of timber Among it we noticed some black pine, and it is a specie of wood undoubtedly well adapted for lumbering as it is straight and comparatively free from limbs while the cedar is as good as a person could wish In a mile or so the mountains again come close to the river but the travel is good, comparatively clear of underbrush while across the river where McKinney creek comes in, it has the appearance of being comparatively level and a low pass up the creek There was an astonishing amount of elk signs, in fact from the looks I should judge that large herds of those noble animals had been in there within a month and probably in less time Deer tracks were numerous but of later date but being compelled to cut every brush work our way around fallen trees and dig down banks, we made so much noise that we did not see any of them

At 11 o'clock we found some grass (our animals did not have any at the last camp) We called a halt and cooked dinner, and at 4 o'clock packed up and traveled about a mile, and struck Slate's valley where we made camp, and discovered that strawberries were in season This is the most beautiful valley that we found on the trip, and in fact it would be a most beautiful spot in any part of the Wallamet valley as the young growth of timber is sufficiently open and free from underbrush to allow a wagon to be driven almost any place. After we had established camp, five of the company went up to Brightenbusher's fork of the Santiam for the purpose of examining the crossings and fell a tree for passage over the stream This fork furnishes at least one half of the water of the stream up which we had been traversing and rises in the mountains north of us and as far as we could judge, runs in a due south direction It is about twenty five or thirty yards wide, clear as a crystal with a rapid current over a rough bottom and two and a half feet deep and very cold We chopped down a tree which reached to an island, which is about one hundred yards across, and then crossed the remainder of the stream The banks of this stream are low and composed of washed gravel From the best information that I could gather and the appearance of the country, this valley must be ten or twelve miles long and from two to four wide and undoubtedly contains a prairie somewhere above the ford

WEDNESDAY July 14th

We suffered more from gnats last night than at any time it was gnats at sundown, gnats in the wee hours of morning, and gnats at sunrise, and when we left camp they were still in possession of the same —the air was full of them and all exceedingly pugnacious and insinuating They would go through blankets with astonishing ease, fasten themselves on every portion of the body exposed penetrate the hair of the head or beard of the face to collect their tax of blood In the morning our skin presented the appearance of hives and was attended with a burning sensation At 5 o'clock we started and crossed Brightenbusher without any accident and traveled until 9 o'clock, when we struck the river at Depot camp and at 2 o'clock started again At 4 o'clock we camped at Muskrat camp The trail for the last four miles is passable and is but little better than none at all, while it could have been constructed along the road survey with an equal amount of work and over much better ground One of the greatest difficulties we have to contend with is the astonishingly poor blazing, and in about every two hundred yards we were compelled to stop and look up the lost trail At 6 o'clock we again took the trail which we followed some distance when we again lost it one of the party finding it announced the same by halloing which brought all together again when Prof Powell came tearing through the brush making as much noise as a grizzly which so frightened Mr Delaney's dog that the animal made excellent time to his master for protection and the uproarious laughter of the whole company At 7 o'clock we camped for the night on the banks of the river, and at the confluence of Tumbling creek This camp is known as Pick and Shovel camp

THURSDAY July 15th

This morning just before breakfast our horses concluded to do some prospecting on their own account which detained us for an hour or more Our course was still up the stream and in a southerly direction and through a dense forest for about three miles when we had to climb a tremendous hill over which the pack trail had been constructed while the road survey ran along level ground This certainly is the most outrageous bad piece of trail that there is to be found in the United States It is so steep that we were compelled to unpack and the previous trail makers received several left handed blessings Finally we arrived at the summit and after resting we examined a small lake circular in form laying in a flat of considerable extent and surrounded on three sides with the precipitous walls of the surrounding mountains which are covered with timber of smaller growth The lake probably contains an area of thirty acres the water in the center is undoubtedly very deep while around the edges for some distance the tall swamp grass grows luxuriantly interspersed with willow We named this Lone Lake which is certainly a most appropriate name as it is so remarkably lonely and the solitude so intense that the place was oppressively quiet In about a quarter of a mile's travel we suddenly came where the trail begins to descend the mountains towards the river and at the same time we beheld Mt Jefferson standing apparently within a very few miles before us in all the grandeur and majesty of God's sentinel over the surrounding mountains The sight filled us with awe and enthusiasm High above all the surrounding peaks and mountains stood this snow clad rock ribbed safety valve of the world's internal heat clouds were coursing around its titanic waist which the sun burnished as a sheen of [illegible] the clear frozen snow threw in relief the black volcanic rock while the apex of the Mount bid bold defiance to all human attempts to scale its precipitous sides The intervening country presents a rugged appearance covered with dense forest dark green in color variegated in places with white where previous fires had raged or some tooth of earth reared its precipitous side above the surrounding, apparently silent, rest giving weight to the impenetrable appearance of the scenery before us No sound is heard except the faintly perceptible rushing waters of the river far below our feet The descent is very precipitous and in one or two places positively dangerous for our pack animals and we were compelled to do some chopping to clear the trail After reaching the river bottom we were again compelled to use the chopping ax liberally in the crossing of a small branch that brawls along over a rough bed of boulders Here we again took to the mountains and as the weather was very warm the physical fatigue made the ascent irksome in the extreme causing us to halt and rest ourselves and sweating animals quite often After climbing the hill we continued along a ridge for some distance then descended a steep hill to where Jefferson's fork of the Santiam joins Lake fork The Jefferson is about the color of water with one half the quantity of milk added runs with a rapid current forty feet wide and two and a half deep rough bottom and furnishes half of the water of the stream where it joins The Lake fork is as clear as water can be and the temperature several degrees higher At this place was lunched and made the discovery that Mr Shannon's haversack containing a fine revolver and other articles had been lost from off one of our animals and after discussing the subject awhile, concluded that it would be better to look on our return from this point to our last camp for the missing article than to return for it. Here we again took up a hill but upon surmounting it we entered upon a gradually ascending grade and through a beautiful park of young pines but tiresome to walk through on account of our feet slipping on the leaves At the top of the mountain we suddenly came to a lake considerably larger than Lone lake and in the same but rather to one side, there is an island While looking at it in a momentary halt a large elk stepped out in full view distant about 100 yards whereupon Prof Powell and Mr Sherman drew up their Remingtons and fired simultaneously, when it ran a short distance and fell dead As it was not in very good flesh, and having as much as our animals could well carry we were compelled to leave considerable of our prize to be consumed by the bears This little change of the monotony of travel considerably raised our spirits and rested us so we again took the trail with lighter steps and hearts descending to the banks of the roaring forks of the Jefferson, which is a very rapid and noisy stream difficult to cross, as it is quite deep At this crossing Prof Powell's mare in crossing caught her rope in the rocks of the river bottom, causing that gentleman to wade in and loosen it but did no further damage than to give that worthy gentleman a thorough wetting, and we sympathized with him by a hearty laugh all of which he gratefully appreciated by heartily joining in with us

From the banks of the roaring fork we again ascend a steep pitch for some distance, where it assumed a more gradual upward tendency, through a pleasant and open forest to travel through for a mile and a half, when we suddenly came out into an open country and proceeded to travel along the side of a hill on which all the timber had been cleanly burned off but covered with sweet laurel—a detestable shrub to travel through The only way that we could find the trail which gradually bore down the hill, was by hacks on the brush or stakes driven in the ground The scenery here is magnificent The mountains on the south, or opposite side of the river are very high so much so that there was considerable snow yet remaining upon them, while high and precipitous rocks stood out in bold relief, and in places stratified with different colors of stone, having the appearance of sandstone or volcanic ashes from our point of observation After passing down the river bottom we got tangled in a "burn" as it is termed, and the trail was simply infernal through its crookedness, bad blazing and ill constructedness

At the river we found that our troubles were not yet over as the trail last year had been cut along the water edge, consequently we were compelled to make a new route for the pack animals, and our mule in passing along run its pack against the 'ragged edge' of a projecting log tore quite a hole into our bean sack thereby loosing about half of our rations in that especially useful article of food on a mountain trip So if there are beans found growing along the river next year, the phenomena can easily be explained by inquiry of our party Finally we reach the upper end of the pass and again called a halt while we proceeded to dig a trail over a very precipitous rock, as the river current set directly and strongly against this point and during the high water of last winter the drift had entirely destroyed the trail made last year The bank at this place is composed of first layer of unknown depth of lava overlaid by twelve feet of volcanic ashes that again overlaid by volcanic scoria which is covered by decayed deposit and vegetation sufficiently deep for forest to grow to considerable size. Here we unpacked to allow the animals sufficient freedom to climb over then packed them up again for camp which we established in a few hundred yards distance, at the foot of lower edge of Independence valley

HOW WASCO DEMOCRATS LIKE LANE

THE DALLES Aug 1 1875

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your Saturday's issue I find an account of the proceedings of the Democratic convention at Salem I must say, after talking to some of my Democratic friends here on the nomination there is nothing left in the minds of a great many Democrats here but the biggest kind of disgust at the way things have been carried on at Salem It was bad enough to have nominated the late Mr LaDow but now to make us swallow Lafayette Lane simply because his father was a smart man, and he as a natural consequence was supposed to be the one is unbearable Oregon is cursed and retarded in her growth by sending just such men to Washington and I for one will not be a party to sending such any more when I know that I can get one hundred and fifty better men than he east of the mountains. We are now all waiting to see what kind of man your party will put up and you can depend your life on it if you nominate a man that will pledge himself to use all just measures to get government to appropriate means to lift the blockade of our noble river here and at the Cascades and finish our Dalles and Sandy wagon road we the Democrats of Wasco county all but a few small little wise fellows who think all they have got to do is to go to Salem and nominate anybody who thinks he ought to go to congress and allow us the privilege of voting for him—will join with you to elect him Respectfully

The Bismarck (D T) Tribune says that a severe gale passed over that neighborhood on Thursday accompanied by hail which did fearful damage to crops and no little to buildings Two-thirds of the lights in all north windows were broken and the windmill at the N P water tanks was totally destroyed The Catholic church was moved about 18 inches and several other incompleted buildings were more or less racked

A RECKLESS ÆRONAUT

THE FATE OF PROF DONALDSON AND NEWTON S GRIMWOOD—A ROTTEN BALLOON, WORTHLESS GAS AND A RECKLESS ÆRONAUT

[Chicago Tribune]

There is every reason to fear that Prof Washington Donaldson and his hapless companion Mr Grimwood, of the Journal, perished in the hurricane of Thursday night. Had the balloon been in its most proper trim, that ruthless tempest would have sorely tried its staunchness But if, as there is abundant reason to suspect the machine was in no fit condition to brave even the lesser hazards of a trip across Lake Michigan, the hope that Donaldson and his guest reached solid ground in safety seems only too desperate

The departure of the balloon was full of evil augury An attempt has already been made in the Tribune to describe the orderless and tumultuous manner of its ascension A frail bag of cheap cotton, harnessed by wreaths of old cordage to a crazy wicker basket, there were no signs of care or precaution in the process of making ready On the contrary half a dozen indifferent fellows in the hippodrome service hung it in a listless way, and the æronaut himself paid so little regard to the swelling globe that one might have been excused for supposing that he had no concern with it whatever It was impossible to avoid noticing

some of them very clumsily repaired which disfigured what should otherwise have been its unbroken contour The ropes by which the car was attached were knotted spliced, and tangled in a fashion more indicative of hurry and economy than of a proper regard for the safety of the professor and his companions Altogether, the balloon wore an air of shabbiness and debility, not to have detected which, in the light of present evidence, seems unaccountable.

Donaldson was evidently very nervous about the start He whistled vacantly to himself and took frequent observations of the wind and the promise of the sky Sunburnt, dusty and restless, he formed a picturesque contrast with the apathetic canvasmen who kept the balloon to its moorings The two reporters who entered the car together held no conversation with him, and while they were in the heat of an inaudible dialogue he swung himself, monkey fashion, to a platform of wire netting just under the neck of the balloon, in which unfragrant neighborhood he remained till the machine became a speck in the upper blue had a good chance to scrutinize him, as he leaned, in the attitude of an auctioneer, over the upper hoop and exchanged some sharp and nervous raillery, with an acquaintance down below He looked short and very square shouldered, with a gymnast's breadth of chest and big jointedness His coat collar was turned up to shield a large, muscular neck from the sun, and a silk hat was drawn down over his face. This latter was brown as a berry, with hair cropped short, a thick dyed mustache twisted up in an inquisitive point at each end and a pair of bright dark eyes, which roved hither and thither. Just behind him the brasses, and the reeds, and the drums of the band were braying and banging cheerily A hundred wags shot their quibs at him, and once in a while somebody, with stronger lungs than the rest, caught his attention and won a reply

Just before the balloon began the series of short bumps and jerks which was the prelude of its departure Donaldson covered his eyes with his hand and gazed steadfastly over the treacherous lake. One of the wags sung out,

"DONALDSON, YOU'D BETTER GET OUT,"

The æronaut was silent for a minute, then he muttered "I wish to Christ I could!"

Grimwood of the Journal was in that dingy wicker car, peering through the net-work of ropes like a cage bird Donaldson's wire perch was fully three feet above him. While the professor played at being captain of the airship, the sole passenger made himself at home, and upraising a bundle of circulars, meant for aerial distribution, asked if they were the provisions.

Every body laughed at the lightness of the fare except Donaldson, who had his arms turned round a pair of the main ropes, and whose face was like a copper mask.

The journalist looked to be a slender young fellow with a plain, honest countenance, and was serious enough for one on the eve of such a fatal voyage as that which, little recking, he was about to take That he realized some of the perils of his situation was evident in the extreme gravity of his features, which were in marked contrast with the reckless and

MOCKING FACES OF THE MOB

It would be hard to define the exact moment of the start Half a dozen men held to the cable and the balloon, slowly mounting 3 or 4 feet reeled to and fro as if it were some monster caught in a trap and frantically bent on escape Now rolling its huge bulk this way now that, with Donaldson swinging from the upper hoop, and Grimwood jerked backward and forward in the basket, it frightened the crowd into a succession of stampedes. Then Donaldson gave an order and Grimwood seized a sand bag and poured its contents through the cordage on a score of upturned faces.

There was a vast laugh all round, a shower of handbills from the car, floating to the earth like a hundred thousand white figures, before its flight could be realized, into the clear sky and was soon hanging over the lake like Sinbad's hovering roc.

THE BALLOON SHOT UP

Donaldson still kept his footing on the perch and waved his hat. Grimwood peeked through the hempen grate which imprisoned him and shed bundle after bundle of handbills Thus amid the shouting of the mob and the crash of the band, the two unfortunates went to their fate

PERSONAL SKETCHES

Professor Donaldson is a man, about 36 years of age a southerner by birth He was once a negro minstrel, and became a professional gymnast He has been engaged more or less in making aerial voyages for the past five years, but first came into prominent public notice in connection with the Graphic balloon, showing his recklessness by insisting on going off in that concern after Professor Wise had declined to have anything to do with it He is a widower, and engaged to be married to one of the lady riders in Barnum's hippodrome

Mr Newton S Grimwood the reporter of the Journal whose courageous bearing on the car of the balloon previous and subsequent to the ascent added a romance to his sad fate, was aged but 22 years and though of little experience as a journalist was regarded by those who knew him as a young man of great promise

A WIFE'S TRICK.

[Cincinnati Times]

A lady occupying a high position at Washington whose husband was of the Government took a trip to Europe with him She 'doted' on lace and here was her opportunity Talking of the acquisitions she would make in this line he told her she should purchase any reasonable quantity provided she would not smuggle any To this she added The gentleman took as part of his wardrobe a dressing gown for, like most Americans, in the privacy of his room he liked to pull off his coat Several times on the trip he observed the care his wife took of this garment, and was gratified by her anxiety for his comfort Once when smoking while lighting his cigar, he set his gown on fire and quite a hole was burned in the skirt His wife was quite agitated and he was flattered that so trifling a danger to him had so moved her One morning immediately after their return to this country, he found before he reached his office that keys he needed he had left at home, and retraced his steps to get them Letting himself in with his latch key he proceeded to his chamber, and on opening the door he found his wife on her knees on the floor, his dressing gown divested of its lining and spread before her and the scissors in hand, disengaging from it a white, flimsy fabric with which it was covered She sprang up on seeing him, laughed and exclaimed, 'You are the smuggler You wore that lace all over Europe and brought it home'

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 3, 1875.

THE SARATOGA CONFERENCE.

A short time since it was announced by telegraph that the Liberal Republican committee of the State of New York had held a meeting at Saratoga, to consult with respect to the action most proper to be taken in the approaching political contest, and that the feeling seemed to be in favor of reuniting with the regular Republican organization. Fuller particulars are given in the Eastern papers just arrived, from which it appears the meeting and the plan of operations were the result of previous friendly conferences between leading Liberal Republicans and some of the most prominent Republicans, conspicuous among whom were Vice-President Wilson, Speaker Blaine, and ex-Senator Morgan. An understanding had been partially arrived at, that the Liberals should call a State convention, and proceed to nominate candidates for the State offices to be filled, of such conspicuous excellence that the straight Republicans could afford to take them up, and thus bring about harmonious action in this campaign, which, it was believed, would naturally produce a reuniting of the two wings of the party for future and national contests. It is further stated that the parties representing the two wings had consulted as to who would be the best persons to nominate for the purpose of compromising the differences, and it was conceded on both sides that the selection of Frederick W. Seward for secretary of state, Calvin T. Hurlburd for comptroller, and Wm. M. Evarts for attorney general, would be acceptable to all reasonable men of both sides, and would, in all probability, bring about the ultimate object desired.

It does not appear whether ex-Senator Fenton, who is justly regarded as one of the most astute among the Liberal Republican leaders, has signified his willingness to enter into the arrangement, but the Herald—a paper which, in the nature of things, would wish to see the programme fail—thinks it is so reasonable that he can hardly object.

Whether the agreement can be carried out, if the terms should be settled by the leaders, sufficiently to cause an effort to be made, remains to be seen. It is scarcely to be supposed, however, that they would go so far unless they felt reasonably confident that the people would ratify their action when the conventions meet.

WILL THEY CONVICT HIM?

The evidence in the Mountain Meadows case is in, and the argument proceeds. A jury made up as is the jury in that case, can hardly be expected to find a verdict against the defendant. There are on the jury several Mormons, who, when examined touching their qualifications as jurors, said they had heard nothing about the case. That fact alone is all that would be needed to show they were either perjured or not possessed of sufficient intelligence to be fair jurors. There is not an intelligent Mormon in Utah who had heard nothing about the case before the trial opened.

The Mormon church is on trial, as well as John D. Lee. The fact that he has lately been excommunicated puts no different feature on the case. The murder was committed in obedience to orders from the authorities of the Mormon hierarchy, and the excommunication years afterwards, of this defendant who was one of the principal instruments of the church in perpetrating the horrible crime, does not tend to relieve the head rulers of the church from responsibility in the premises. It was a most treacherous and brutal butchery of a hundred innocent people, many of them women and children, at the behest of Brigham Young and his lieutenants, to gratify a desire for revenge against the government and to get plunder for the church coffers; and nothing can change the nature of the deed.

There will be no person, we venture to say, who has heard the trial, who will not be satisfied when the jury retires, that Lee is guilty. Indeed his own confession as well as the flimsy attempts of the defense to get him off on the plea of duress, are conclusive. And the annals of crime present no more horrible a case. But that is likely to weigh not a feather with the Mormon jurors.

THE NATIONAL COTTON EXCHANGE.

The national cotton exchange, organized a year ago, appears to be going about its work with well defined views and purposes. At its annual meeting, July 20, which was held at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, questions of great importance to the cotton trade were discussed, embracing among them, the subject of devising suitable arrangements for securing specific monthly reports of all cotton shipped overland to spinners, and a plan for effecting reclamation of falsely packed cotton; and the adoption of a uniform standard of classification of cotton throughout the world, with the American standard as a basis. The first of these matters is intended as a means of securing ready and convenient information with regard to the condition and prospects of the domestic market. This would be of great advantage to both producers and buyers, enabling both to avoid in many cases, the effect of those sudden fluctuations which often prove disastrous. The adoption of a uniform standard of classification is another very important matter. But this, it is hardly to be expected will be reached. Uniformity among nations in commercial matters is difficult of attainment. But whether the cotton exchange accomplish this and all its other purposes or not it will do good. It will harmonize and to some extent organize a branch of business which, considering its magnitude, has been suffered to go at loose ends more than any other.

WORK FOR SCHURZ TO DO.

Rumor says Carl Schurz is about to return from Europe to enter the Ohio canvass against the inflation Democrats. He could certainly serve the cause of sound financial policy by so doing. No man could be named, perhaps, who could do so much as he to insure the election of the Republican ticket in that State, and, surely, the issue between the parties there is one that must make every one who believes in a money currency instead of a rag currency, desire to see the Republicans win. The success of the rag money party would inspire fresh confidence in the whole race of inflationists, and the clamor for more irredeemable paper would be renewed with greater fury than ever. Such a state of affairs cannot fail to effect unfavorably the credit of our country abroad; for the civilized world regards the precious metals as the ultimate measure of all values, and the only true basis for a circulating medium. Moreover, a people who can be got to vote en masse for a scheme, whose only purpose is the paying off of debts with half the amount of real value they nominally represent, and the placing in the hands of speculators and gambling traders an indefinite amount of fictitious capital, with the indorsement of the government on it, will naturally be watched very sharply by foreign capitalists, in whatever they propose in the way of public enterprise. This is no slight consideration in a country situated as our States are situated—with immense undeveloped resources and a scarcity of available capital. The possible election of the Democratic ticket in Ohio, viewed from this standpoint, appears as a misfortune to the whole nation.

On the 20th ult. Governor Tilden, of New York State, paid a visit to Mayor Wickham of New York city. These two dignitaries having been at loggerheads for some time past, the visit of the Governor caused quite a sensation, and the curiosity was not diminished by the fact that General Smith, of the police board, and General Fitz-John Porter were closeted with him and the Mayor at the City Hall for a long time. The politicians who hang about the City Hall believe there has been a reconciliation between Tilden and Wickham, and they have shaken hands across the bloody chasm, for the purpose of working together for the benefit of the party.

ART TREASURES.—The second five numbers of "The Art Treasures of England," published by Gibbie & Barrie, Philadelphia, are now ready for delivery. They quite justify the promise of the first installment. This book which is a collection of representative pieces from the greatest painters and sculptors of Great Britain, will prove an invaluable agency in the cultivation of art ideas in America, a culture in which, from the circumstances of the case, Americans must need aid from without. The Art Treasures is really a work of great value.

CORRECTIONS.—In the copy furnished us of the Platform of the Democratic convention there were several errors in the second and third resolutions which destroyed the sense. We republish them as corrected:

2. The preservation of the general government in the proper exercise of the powers delegated to it in the Constitution, carefully and strictly construed, and the maintenance, inviolate of the several States of the Union in all their rights, dignity and equality, as the most competent and reliable administration of their own domestic concerns, and the surest bulwark against the tendency toward a centralized despotism.

3. Opposition to aggressions by either department of the government, upon the functions of any other and to the exercise by federal authority of any of the rights or powers reserved by the constitution to the States respectively, or to the people.

PACIFIC RUBBER PAINT CO. OF SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Patented June 22, 1869, April 4, 1871.

Best Paint in the World.

Flows from the Brush freely. Works easily, and will not Wash, Crack or Peel off, and Dries with a Fine Gloss.

"RUBBER PAINT" Will Cover more Surface; Cover it Better and Last Longer than Lead and Oil, and is Guaranteed to be Superior to any CHEMICAL PAINT of any kind whatsoever.

The Solicitors and Agents of other Paints have represented that our Patents are worthless, and that dealers would lay themselves liable to prosecution and damages. These reports are simply an UNSCRUPULOUS ADVERTISING DODGE.

In reply, we guarantee all who handle our Goods, to the fullest extent against any trouble or interference. We also guarantee our Paint to be
TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. CHEAPER
In covering than the Averill Chemical Paint; and further guarantee that it will LAST TWICE AS LONG,
Without Chalking, Cracking or Peeling off, of which we have abundant proof. By calling at our Office, we will refer to buildings painted with Averill Chemical Paint within thirty months which are chalking and cracking off—a part of the buildings one color and a part another color, NOTWITHSTANDING THE PROPRIETORS CLAIM IT WILL DO NEITHER.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

James Connelly was arraigned on a charge of assaulting Ben Marshall and was fined $15 for his efforts to ornament the countenance of his friend

Andrew Jackson a gentleman of color was arraigned on a charge of rapid driving through the streets Although defendant denied the soft impeachment the evidence in the case appeared conclusive to the mind of the court, and a fine of $10 was imposed

A gentleman of color named Chas Gordon was allowed the privilege of pleading to a charge of drunkenness, which he did by saying Not guilty yer Honor His plea availed naught and he was fined $5, and in default incarcerated for the brief period of three days

Dick Klinder a very sleepy looking youth who, from appearances could not have been more than 18 years of age was curtly told to stand up and say whether he had conducted himself disorderly He meekly replied in the affirmative and the court fixing its judicial optic on the prisoner proceeded to pass sentence—$5 or three days

Indian Tom a stolid specimen of copper-colored humanity on whose suggestive features did not linger the painted trace of contrition or concern, was charged with being drunk With a frankness scarcely to have been expected in the crafty mind of the average Lo Tom acknowledged the corn with a look on his face just as if he did not care a fig whether school kept or not Five dollars or three days below was the mild decision of the court

Emma Kennedy a rather bright looking Mrs Lo was arraigned on a charge of being drunk along with Indian Tom She denied the base insinuation and excited the clemency of the court at once by saying I want to go home ' On inquiry the fact was elicited that her home was at Salem She came down last week to call on some friends and wound up her visit by getting drunk Emma appeared very penitent for her naughty conduct, and the court finally told her that if she would leave town at once and go back to Salem and take precious good care not to make another visit to Portland he would remit her sentence which was either $5 or three days She gladly consented and was accordingly discharged on the conditions mentioned

ANOTHER CHICAGO MOTOR.

[Chicago Tribune]

John Martenson residing at No 213 North Market street, has on exhibition there a rude machine constructed entirely by his own hand of wood, which is as he claims the model of an engine to be run by a new motive power, of which he is the discoverer A bare outline of the principle is this A lever worked by one man turns a wheel The revolution of this wheel sets in motion a series of compound levers varying in number from six to twenty The long arms of these levers are worked by a combination of cogged wheels and cogged bars which combination is according to Mr Martenson s statement the chief principle in his discovery and is not yet to be made public The short arms play successively into the cogs of a wheel which drives the engine. This last wheel is thus pried around its entire instead of being turned by a belt in the ordinary way Thirty motions of the lever in the man s hand are to turn this last wheel 14 700 times in one minute and but one man is needed to run an engine, no matter what its horse power may be No steam water fire or air is used The inventor believes that an engine 4 feet long 3 feet wide and 2 feet high would drive a street car at a high rate of speed and that a correspondingly larger one would propel an ocean steamship or draw a train of cars

Mr Martenson is very enthusiastic over his discovery upon which he has labored for six years He is foreman in the composing room of the Swedish Arie ian newspaper, and as his family are dependent upon him for support he has been restricted during these years to a few hours each evening for application to his invention He is extremely desirous that some public spirited gentleman should furnish him with the means of subsistence for a few months and thus allow him to devote day and night to the working out of his idea He feels positive that in a half year s uninterrupted time he could make an engine which would run a horse car through our streets and thus demonstrate the practicability and the extraordinary economy of his new power

An astronomer whose name Mr Martenson could not remember and who was he thinks connected with the Chicago University called early in 1871 to see the engine of which he had heard rumors strongly urged the inventor to persevere as he had a good thing and promised him support, At the time of the fire, however he lost trace of his patron and has not since heard from him As has been already stated his engine is on exhibition at his residence to any who may be interested in it

LOWER TAXES

[New York Dry Goods Journal]

At the instance of the treasury department the last congress when business was unusually sluggish and the people s ability to pay had decreased added to their burdens and made their condition worse Treasury predictions as to the effect of this legislation on the revenue for the fiscal year just closed have substantially failed though figures are adroitly arranged to hide this failure This shows that the people s paying capacity is greatly diminished and the treasury policy must stop Instead of increasing the taxes the next congress must lower them A crying evil and one of the great causes of the present commercial distress distrust and stagnation is that a horde of drones have for years under one or another pretext quartered themselves on the Government and have lived in ease—often in luxury—on the moneys wrung by deceit and trickery from the honest and hard working people of the country This is the evil that must be resolutely destroyed and this is one of the tasks to which the next congress must set itself No matter who protests no matter whose pickings are endangered—the work must be done for the country expects that congress to remove the burdens which have for years made it impossible for very many men to net a profit on their year s business No matter how loudly the cry of public good may be raised against retrenchment and reduction of revenue thieves sharpers and drones always vigorously claim that the public good requires the continuance of their places and pay, let the ax go to the root and let every officer whose services cannot be shown to be really indispensable go by the board No halfway measures will meet the case nor should such be tolerated The country wants no retention of needless offices for a fresh swarm of hungry drones and parasites to fill it wants these offices wholly swept away the appropriations for them stopped and the drones turned out to get their bread by honestly serving someone s needs This is the duty before the next congress and by the degree of its fulfillment will the public judge that body The members must not heed the blandishments of Washington society the tragic appeals of frightened placemen and placewomen nor the allurements of patronage They have a high and stern labor to perform if they would deserve well of and stand well with their constituents they must neither shrink falter nor turn aside

A gentleman who recently traveled from Prescott Arizona to Los Nitos Cal says in a letter to the Wm that he met 35 000 head of sheep on the road to Arizona Territory

THE FLOODS IN FRANCE

AWFUL DESTRUCTION OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

The full extent of the terrible disaster which has overwhelmed several of the southern departments of France is only now beginning to be fully realized. The whole [illegible] the Garonne is submerged and the smiling valley turned into a vast sheet of water. Towns and villages have been swept away, while the destruction of human life has been something appalling. So suddenly and unexpected did this deluge burst upon the doomed districts that hundreds met their death at their own firesides by the sudden inroad of the destroying torrents. Some 20 000 people have been made homeless by these floods which in their extent and the amount of damage done are without example in the history of France. Whole villages have been swept away or lie buried beneath the waters, the farm houses have disappeared and the crops been swept from the face of the country. Where a few weeks ago all was smiling with promises of plenty is now a sad waste of wide extending waters. Nor do the floods promise soon to subside. On the contrary the waters appear to be rising and snow and rain fall in the desolated district as if to complete the scenes of horror that have been there enacted. Not even the terrible devastations caused by the floods in 1835 can be compared in the suffering and loss they occasioned with the plague of waters that so unexpectedly has fallen upon France in this present year. The material losses are immense. With praiseworthy promptness the French assembly voted 100 000f for the immediate relief of the sufferers and the appeal made to the charity of the French people was answered with characteristic generosity. Still, the outside aids can but soften the force of the crushing disaster that has fallen on the people of the inundated districts. They are completely ruined and when the waters have subsided must proceed to build up their fortunes as best they can. One quarter of the town of Toulouse was completely destroyed. Over 600 houses of the Faubourg St Cyprien were swept away as were the manufactories established on the river's bank. Five of the bridges were carried off and the railway lines completely interrupted.

The most harrowing scenes were presented in the quarter inhabited by the working men. More than 300 corpses had been discovered in the inundated quarters and hundreds were wounded by the crumbling buildings. In many cases the soldiers met their death while endeavoring to succor the people. But great as the loss of life is known to have been, those supposed to be buried beneath the ruins of the fallen houses will, it is feared, vastly outnumber the corpses already discovered. Until the water subsides it will be impossible fully to estimate the loss of life that has occurred. There is good reason to believe that it has been terrible. Three villages are known to have been completely destroyed with their inhabitants. They were swept absolutely away, nothing remains to mark that they had ever existed. Under these distressing conditions the authorities civil and military display most praiseworthy energy and devotion, but the suffering is too wide-spread to admit of more than partial relief.

In order to understand the extent of the disaster it is necessary to be acquainted somewhat with the geography of Toulouse and its vicinity. The town, placed in the midst of the Pyrenean Isthmus, is built on both banks of the river Garonne, which leaving the lower slopes of the mountain, falls very rapidly. The river divides and flows into several channels, but reunites above St Michel. Only the right bank of the river is sheltered by high quays. At the Mountin du Bazacle there is a considerable fall of water formed by the whole body of the river. The town proper is built on the right bank of the river which is much more elevated than the left bank except at the south and is therefore sheltered from all inundations. The Faubourg St Cyprien, situated on the bank of the river, is in reality a separate town and is the depot for the trade between Gascony and the Pyrenees. Before this disaster the population was estimated at 30 000. St. Cyprien was connected with the town of Toulouse by three bridges—St Michel Pont-Neuf and St Pierre. It was inhabited almost exclusively by the working classes. One of the most thrilling scenes was the removal of the sick from the Hotel Dieu which is situated in the inundated district.

One of the touching incidents of the terrible drama occurred outside of Toulouse. In a small village all the inhabitants save the occupants of a detached house had been warned of the approaching danger and were enabled to seek a place of safety. The unfortunate farmer and his family were awakened by the water flowing into their house. Half naked they took refuge on the roof of the house. The mother numbed with cold tied herself to the chimney, holding her infant in her arms. The father with his two daughters maintained himself on a projection of the roof. The unfortunates remained for a long time in this position, when two courageous soldiers learning their danger put off in a small boat to their rescue. Directed by the cries of the unfortunates they arrived at the farm house. When their rescue seemed certain the walls of the house suddenly gave way and all were precipitated into the flood. The fall of the house creating a kind of a whirlpool, the two gallant soldiers who had come to the farmer's assistance, were swept into its vortex and all perished.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HANGED

A Paris newspaper gives this extract from the notes of a young fellow who tried to commit suicide and was cut down before suffocation was complete. He was delighted to return to life, and it is noticed that would-be suicides who are rescued from their self sought fate rarely renew their attempt to shuffle off this mortal coil. "When I stood on the chair the mirror on the mantelpiece involuntarily attracted me and I looked at myself as I fastened the slip-knot around my neck. Blood flowed to my head, for my face was very red; something took place at the same time in my optic nerves, for it seemed to me that my face suddenly began to make grimaces. My eyes and nose changed place instantly like the pieces of a kaleidoscope. I kicked the chair from under me and fell with the sensation that I had been struck on the top of my head with a hammer. I did not at first feel the rope around my neck. The only very clear impression which followed the blow with the hammer upon my skull was that of great heaviness in the head. It seemed to me that my head was larger and heavier on my shoulders than the great bell of Notre Dame. At the same time I felt an immense night falling around and in me. Then I felt extremely cold at my lower extremities, and at the same time an acute, terrible pain in my neck which was produced by the rope which cut my skin and sawed my veins. Then I felt nothing. Evidently this was the moment when my good aunt Cecile entered my room and cut me down."

IN FAVOR OF CHEERFUL GIVING.—A worthy pastor in Cleveland Ohio, has published a card in explanation of his yielding his prejudices so far as to sanction a lawn fete to be held for the benefit of his church. But he takes occasion to say: "Everybody knows at least every body who knows me, that I have always been opposed to every kind of indirect method or sensational scheme for raising money to support our churches and feed our [illegible] missionaries and in short to all modern inventions in the worship of God. I have always maintained that the plain and honest statements of a truly Christian love based upon facts and gospel principles—the love of Christ constraining us, living [illegible] store as God hath prospered us, would raise more money in the right way and prove more practically successful than all the fairs, bazaars, pantomimic stereopticon tableaux, raffles, lotteries, suppers, eating, drinking, dancing and amusing ourselves generally for the sake of the church, even though the whole number of Christians in all the world were no more than the 120 assembled in Jerusalem and as poor as poverty itself in worldly goods. Such have always been my sentiments."

[illegible] advices from the agricultural districts report harvesting active [illegible] fall sown grain turning out well. The spring [illegible] has not been touched yet owing to it not being ready for the reaper. Some points on the line of the railway are in receipt of this year's wheat. The quality received is up to the full average of fall wheat.

From one or two parties who claim to know we are informed that the late sown spring wheat will not only yield light but the quality will be very much inferior to former seasons. From Walla Walla and Umatilla valleys confirmed reports reach us that harvesting is being pushed forward with great rapidity notwithstanding scarcity of hands. The yield is proving better than claimed heretofore by even the best informed.

The root crop particularly the potato crop will be light owing to injury sustained by the continued heated and dry spell. The potato crop will not prove more than one half what it promised a month ago. Many report the vines looking fair but the potatoes are quite small and few in a hill. This is more particularly the case in the higher land. California advices also report that a light yield will be had in the heavy growing district. The cause of the light yield, in that State, is continuous seeding with potatoes.

The market is being more liberally supplied with Oregon plums and apples. The quality is an improvement upon those had from California.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—Advices from San Francisco indicate a weakening in that market and ours is in sympathy, declining quotations being furnished to-day at $1 [illegible] ℔ cental.

FLOUR—The price current in our local market is doubtless rather below the proportionate rates at which wheat can be purchased, and shows no tendency to decline, but is firm at $6 ℔ bbl for standard extras, $5 [illegible] for outside and country brands and [illegible] for superfine.

OATS—But few lots are now reaching this market and all are about taken to supply the local demand. Current quotations are [illegible] ℔ bushel with chances for a decline of [illegible] for prime lots.

HAY—A full supply in the market, quotable at $10 [illegible] ℔ ton for fair to best timothy loose and $11 baled.

POTATOES—The market is in fair supply at [illegible] ℔ bushel.

ONIONS—There are but few lots in the market, quotable at [illegible] ℔ ℔ nominally.

APPLES DRIED—The demand is hardly [illegible] and receipts have somewhat fallen off. The outgoing steamer to-day carried none. Quotations are nominal at 7@8c ℔ ℔.

BACON—There is an improved demand in the local market, and without any advance in quotations sales are freer at 11 [illegible] ℔ ℔ for sides, 11@1[illegible] for hams, and 8a9c for shoulders.

EGGS—There is an active demand for fresh laid and a decline in the volume of receipts. The market is firm at 30c ℔ doz, though shippers not willing to pay over 27c.

LARD—Good Oregon made is worth 16c ℔ ℔ in kegs or tins and is in brisk demand.

BUTTER—We quote fair to choice roll at 22[illegible] ℔ ℔, extra print for table use 30@35c, common solid 18@20c.

CHICKENS—The market is in liberal supply, quotations for full grown $4 50@4 50 per dozen, spring $2 50@2 75.

BEEF CATTLE—Some very fine arrivals have been noticed during the week and the market is supplied with an excellent stock. Slaughterers' prices are $3 75@4 25 per cent nett, or $1 75@2 50 on foot.

MUTTON SHEEP—The demand is light at $2a2 50 per head.

DRESSED HOGS—There is some inquiry for the local trade at [illegible] ℔ ℔.

HIDES AND FURS—Prices for hides are still down on account of the many damaged lots reaching the market. Undamaged are quoted at [illegible] ℔ ℔ for dry beef hides, [illegible] for green, calf skins [illegible] deer [illegible] ℔ ℔ dried, [illegible] green, mink skins each $1 [illegible] otter $1@[illegible] beaver [illegible].

WOOL—The receipts so far during the week have been much less than for the corresponding days of last week. Buyers have about gathered up all choice lots on the market which were offered at current rates and in the absence of encouraging advices from abroad are doing but little. Quotations are for Valley 20@2[illegible]c, Eastern Oregon 14@1[illegible]c ℔ ℔.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words among not only one but many nations must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors to a great extent and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair the Vigor is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.
